Dear Miss Mason

I can't guess what you are thinking of my ten days' delay in answering your most kind note of invitation. I have been very busy and not very well, the usual excuses. I am hoping very much to be able to accept, for I know I shall learn as much as my receptive powers will let me. My holiday arrangements are only just opening themselves. But as I have a standing invitation from my cousins the Holidays to invite myself to their house at Flaxhead, I am hoping to combine a visit to them with the acceptance of your kind invitation. The date (after April 21st) which you suggest would suit me very well; and I hope it would not be too late if I wrote and asked to come at the very end of the month.

We are at the moment making time in the English teaching among the juniors here. Our experiments down to last term were summed up in the little pamphlet. This term we have had H. M. Inspectors, and as soon as we have digested the criticisms we shall get from them, I hope we shall start moving once more, - with the added advantage of some of your advice. With very many thanks

yours very truly
Roger A. Raven.
